Dear Jeremy:

It is our pleasure to inform you that your recent participation in the SAVTA Proficiency Registration Program has resulted in your successfully completing the requirements for the designation of Certified Professional SafeTech.

As such, you are now entitled to suffix the designation CPS after your name on your business cards, letterheads, or forms bearing your name. The area in which the designation is printed should be assigned exclusively for that purpose to avoid association with any company name.

Please remember that your status as a Certified Professional SafeTech applies personally to you and not to a company, employer, or group of employees.

It is suggested that you employ the CPS designation at every opportunity such as in signing letters, proposals, bids, etc. This will make the public more and more aware of the existence of the PRP and encourage them to search out participants in the program.

A summary of your participation in the SAVTA PRP is enclosed for your records.

With sincere congratulations upon your advancement within our industry, we remain

Respectfully yours,

Although the Mandatory Section (S-00) of the PRP is actually graded as one test rather than the seventeen separate subjects listed above, we are providing you with this generalized analysis of your performance in each of the seventeen areas so that you might better know where your strengths and weaknesses lie.

An overall score of 70% is required to pass the Mandatory Section.

Were the subjects graded separately, the performance levels would equal:

90-100%	-	EXCELLENT
80-89%	-	GOOD
70-79%	-	FAIR
0-69%	-	POOR
